

ClassHub

Peer Learning, Reimagined for Northwestern

The Challenge

Classroom Isolation

Large Northwestern lectures leave students disconnected. There is no easy way to find study partners or access peer advice in real-time. As a result, students struggle alone, even when the answer is sitting two rows away.

Target Audience

Northwestern University

Undergraduates

The Solution

A Course-Scoped Community

ClassHub is a peer-first platform designed for students to help students. It integrates seamlessly into the course structure without the noise of generic chat apps.

Key Capabilities

Chat

Real-time messaging

Resources

Share & access
course materials.

Groups

Private study groups

Mentors

Connect with upperclassmen

Market Comparison

Platform	Focus	Weakness
Piazza / EdStem	Instructor-Centric	Ticketing system feel; slow response, reliant on faculty
GroupMe	General Chat	Noisy & cluttered
ClassHub	Peer-First	instant access, student-centric, archive resources

Our Innovation

- 🛡️ Psychological Safety: Anonymous toggle, private study groups
- 👤 Course mentors: Upperclassmen advising
- 🔒 Course-Scoped: Automatic isolation of channels to prevent cross-course noise.
